Welcome

Mark Allan

BPF President and CEO, Landsec

Welcome to the BPF 60th anniversary dinner.

The BPF was incorporated on 17 October 1963 and since its inception has had a proud record of supporting the UK property industry. It's been our voice through six decades which have seen incredible change in our towns, cities and the built environment that defines them. The companies represented here tonight are part of that journey and I want to thank each of them – and all our members – for their support for the BPF.

Serving as BPF President is a huge privilege and I am delighted to welcome so many of my predecessors in the role tonight. Their leadership also helped to define the BPF and make it the thriving organisation it is today. On behalf of all our members – thank you.

Each Presidency is characterised by different challenges and opportunities. My tenure falls during a period where for the first time in over a decade we are running up to an election with a real prospect of a change in government. And where the major political parties are each seeking a credible agenda for economic growth.

As a major source of investment in the UK economy, our sector is being seen as more relevant than ever and we have a huge opportunity to use that platform to demonstrate the role we can play in a successful future for our Country. We are being recognised as partners in a positive agenda – and it is my mission as President to make sure that we seize this opportunity and cement a meaningful engagement and lasting partnership with the next government.

Despite the many challenges facing the world and our sector, the BPF annual dinner is an opportunity to come together as a sector, enjoy each other's company and celebrate the great contribution we make to the UK economy and to people's lives across the country.

I am delighted to welcome Alastair Campbell as our after dinner speaker this evening. Alastair needs no introduction – and I am looking forward to a fascinating and entertaining talk and conversation with him.

Finally my thanks to the teams at The Guildhall, the Clink and the BPF who have worked so hard to put this event on. And to our sponsors Mills & Reeve and iNHouse for their generous support.

I hope you have a wonderful evening.

iNHouse Communications are proud to be partnering with the British Property Federation in the year of their 60th anniversary.

For over a decade, iNHouse has brought together experts with the right knowledge, experience and skillset to deliver high-impact strategic advice alongside creative campaigns which produce award winning results, often in the most difficult of situations.

We have built a reputation for smart, innovative campaigns that get results. iNHouse is based right in the heart of Westminster with unrivalled political networks.

“Their political insight alongside innovative, media savvy campaigns have been invaluable to me and the West Midlands. When I’m asked who is the best in the business, I point to iNHouse”.

Andy Street, Mayor of the West Midlands

Our Event Space

Our events space at the heart of Westminster also offers opportunities for political networking events, company away days and much more.

Congratulations to the members of the British Property Federation on reaching your 60th anniversary.

The property industry is a driving force in the British economy. From new homes, to workplaces, hotels and leisure, its value is felt in every community. The BPF's advocacy and championing of the industry, working with governments of all colours, is essential and respected.

My Labour government will work with you to unblock any impediments to your potential, removing hurdles to ensure the sector can continue to go from strength to strength. Sincere congratulations on reaching this milestone.

Keir Starmer

Sir Keir Starmer, Leader of the Opposition

Guest Speaker

Alastair Campbell

Alastair Campbell is a writer, communicator and strategist best known for his role as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair's spokesman, press secretary and director of communications and strategy.

Still active in politics and campaigns in Britain and overseas, he now splits his time between writing, speaking, broadcasting, charities and consultancy. With former Tory minister Rory Stewart, he co-presents the UK's most listened to podcast, The Rest Is Politics. He is editor at large of The New European, a paper he helped found in the wake of the Brexit referendum seven years ago.

He has written eighteen books in the past fourteen years, including ten volumes of diaries, four novels, a Number 1 best-selling analysis of what it takes to win in politics, business and sport, Winners and How They Succeed, and two personal memoirs on depression and the pursuit of happiness. His latest book, But What Can I Do?, a call to arms for a new generation of political activism, was an instant Sunday Times Number 1 best-seller.

He was for many years chairman of fund-raising of Bloodwise, Britain's main blood cancer charity, but in recent years has become increasingly involved with mental health charities and causes, speaking about his own experience of depression, psychosis and addiction, and of his brother Donald's lifelong struggle with schizophrenia. A former 'Mind Champion of the Year', he is an ambassador for several charities, including Mind, Rethink and Alcohol Concern. He is a Global Ambassador for Australians for Mental Health.

In November 2017 Campbell was awarded an honorary fellowship of the Royal College of Psychiatrists in recognition of his leadership role in breaking down the stigma surrounding mental illness, and in fighting for better services.

Despite being expelled by the Labour Party under Jeremy Corbyn for voting Lib Dem in European elections in protest at the party's Brexit position, he says he has "always been Labour and will always help Labour against the Tories".
